Dear Joshua:

We are all looking forward to your visit here November 22. Since we will be considering the field of tolerance, I will ask some of our pharmacologists to sit in on the discussions. I would also like to go over our cancer methodology program. Perhaps the best way of doing this is to figure spending the morning on the cancer program and the afternoon on the field of tolerance. These plans of course would depend on your departure time.

Things have been moving along here at a rapid clip. We marketed kanamycin this summer and it is moving along reasonably well. We are still enmeshed in government contracts in the cancer field and have to be careful that our other programs are not smothered by them. Our new research building is proceeding essentially on schedule, something that amazes me.

We hope to move into our new home by the time you arrive. If that is the case, Pat and I would like to have you as our first guest.

You and Esther have been doing so much traveling the last few years that another trip abroad for you appears quite routine. If you have taken any kodachromes on your last trip, we would enjoy seeing them very much. This applies also to your Australian trip as well. And naturally I would want to reciprocate with my Japanese pictures. Seriously, though, if you get in early enough on Friday evening, try to bring them with you.

As soon as your plans become definite let me know them and I will set things up.

Sincerely,

BRISTOL LABORATORIES INC.
